TRIBAL LEADERS’ PUBLIC HEALTH SYMPOSIUM

The Center for Native American Health (CNAH) Tribal Leaders' Public Health Symposium (TLPHS) is an opportunity for current and future American Indian Tribal leaders to build public health knowledge and skills to succeed in creating safe, healthy and prosperous Indigenous communities.

Who should attend?
- Tribal Leaders - Elected/appointed Governors, Lt Governors, Tribal Council, Chapter Officials, Judges, Sheriffs, etc.
- Emerging Leaders - Individuals who have a vision for themselves in tribal leadership or are being otherwise groomed for leadership
- Public Health Practitioners - Tribal Health & Related Program Directors & Managers, etc.
- Spiritual/Traditional, Elder and Youth Leaders interested in health and governance for future generations, especially Tribal Youth Council members

Participants must register as teams of 3 individuals and each team must include at least one recently elected or appointed Leader. There is no cost to register for the TLPHS, however, each team member must commit to participating in both days of the workshop -- single-day/partial registrations will not be accepted.

Registration deadline: 10/31/18
